SPENCER, John, D.D. (continued).

The chief purpoſe of Spencer in his learned work, De Legibus Hebræorum, is to prove in detail that the rites and ceremonies of the Jewiſh religion were inſtituted in direct oppoſition to the practices of the ſurrounding idolatrous nations, and in order to eſtabliſh the ſtrongeſt diſtinction between the Jews and them. Yet it has been affirmed by Orme and others that the object of the work is to ſhow that the Hebrew Ritual was almoſt entirely borrowed from the Egyptians and accommodated to the taſtes and prejudices which the Jews had acquired among that people. Witſius in his Ægyptiaca writes in oppoſition to Spencer.

TALMUD.

The word Talmud, which means ſtudy, namely, of ſubjects appertaining to the religious traditions of the Jews, was given to the vaſt collections of Jewiſh patriſtic writings which contain the theological and judicial problems and deciſions, together with the exegetical diſcuſſions, moral maxims and aphoriſms, narratives of an hiſtorical, mythical, and allegorical character, and the miſcellaneous opinions and ſayings of the Rabbins. The Talmud conſiſts of two parts,—namely, of the body of Rabbinical theology entitled Miſchnah (which ſee), and of the Gemara (which in meaning is ſynonymous with the term Talmud). The ſeveral paragraphs of the Miſchnah form texts to which are appended the more lengthy comments of the Gemara. The latter is eſſentially the expoſition and criticiſm, the amplification or limitation of ſuch Miſchnaical texts. The Gemara is compoſed in the Aramaic dialect, and interſperſed with many Hebrew fragments, which in regard to ſtyle agree with the language of the Miſchnah. There are two diſtinct Talmuds. The one, which contains the relics of the tranſactions of Jewiſh academies in Paleſtine, is called the Jeruſalem Talmud, and was completed in the latter part of the fourth century; the other compilation, called the Babylonian Talmud, is four times larger than the Talmud of Jeruſalem. It contains the Gemara, or comments to thirty-ſix out of the ſixty-three Miſchnaical treatiſes, and occupies 2947 folio pages in the printed editions, all editions being paged alike to facilitate reference. This Talmud was completed in Sura, after the expiration of the fifth century. The moſt celebrated commentary on the Babylonian Talmud was written by Raſchi (See JARCHI). There exiſt many digeſts of the Talmud; the one beſt known, and which relates to the practical religious ſyſtem of the Rabbins, was executed by Maimonides in his large work entitled Iad Chazakah. (See MAIMONIDES.) Editions of the Jeruſalem Talmud, which now are ſcarce and never have been publiſhed in a complete form, appeared at Venice (printed by Bomberg), Cracow, Amſterdam, Vienna, &c. Of the Babylonian Talmud have been publiſhed numerous editions; the firſt, by Daniel Bomberg, in Venice, was commenced in 1520. Moſt editions are in 12 vol. folio; but there are ſome in convenient 8°., the laſt of which appeared at Prague, 1839–46, in 24 vol. Small portions of the Talmud have been tranſlated into Latin and various other languages.

TARGUM.

Targum, or interpretation, is the general name of the tranſlations and paraphraſes of the Old Teſtament, written in the Aramaic dialects of Paleſtine and Babylonia. Theſe verſions differ very much in ſtyle and in the mode of introducing a variety of Jewiſh traditions and doctrinal matter. The Targum to the Pentateuch has come down to us in various forms. The moſt ancient is that attributed to Onkelos (which ſee); the other, which ought to be termed Jeruſalem Targum, is falſely aſcribed to Jonathan Ben Uzziel (which ſee), for it contains alluſions to ſubjects and events which originated many centuries after the life of that interpreter of the Hebrew Scriptures, who is ſaid to have been a contemporary of Chriſt. There are portions apparently of a third verſion of the Pentateuch, which in the printed copies bear the name Jeruſalem Targum. It has, however, been found that this verſion contains ſimply emendations and different readings of the one attributed to Jonathan Ben Uzziel. The right deſignation of both theſe verſions therefore is Jeruſalem Targum. The Targums to nearly all the Scriptures are printed in the Polyglotts and in the Rabbinical Bibles of Buxtorf and others. Two Targums to the Book of Chronicles by different authors were edited with Latin verſions by Beck and Wilkins.

THEODORET.

An illuſtrious Father of the Church. Born at Antioch about 393. He was placed in the Monaſtery of Euprepius at the age of ſeven, where his maſters were Theodore of Mopſueſtia and St. Chryſoſtom. Biſhop of Cyrus, a city of Syria, 420. Died 457. As a commentator on the Scriptures, he bears a high rank for the purity of his ſtyle and the clearneſs and good ſenſe of his explanations. His Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory is a kind of ſupplement to Socrates and Sozomen. The edition of his works by Schulze is an excellent reprint of the accurate edition, by Sirmond, 4 vol. folio, 1642, and the ſupplementary volume by Garner, 1684; in all 5 vol. folio.

Opera omnia, Gr. et Lat. ex recenſione J. Sirmondi, denuo edidit, Græca e codicibus locupletavit, antiquiores editiones adhibuit, verſionem Latinam recognovit, et variantes lectiones adjecit J. L. Schulze. 5 vol. in 10. 8°. Halæ, 1769–74

VILLARS, Montfaucon de.

A French abbé, related to the celebrated Montfaucon. He was a writer of a lively imagination and celebrated as a preacher. For writing the Count of Gabalis he was denied the pulpit, as it was not clear whether he intended to be ironical or serious. He was assassinated 1675. Pope took the machinery of the Sylphs in the Rape of the Lock from this book.

The Count of Gabalis; or, the extravagant mysteries of the Cabalists exposed in five pleasant discourses on the Secret Sciences. [Anon.] Done into English by P. A., Gent., with short animadversions. 12°. Lond. 1680

WARBURTON, William, D.D., Biſhop of Glouceſter.

A very eminent divine. Born at Newark-upon-Trent 1698. Articled to an attorney 1715, and commenced practice at Newark, but a paſſion for reading led him to relinquiſh his profeſſion, and he received deacon's orders 1723. Vicar of Gryeſly 1726. Rector of Burnt on Brant, Broughton, Lincolnſhire, 1728. Preacher to Lincoln's Inn 1746. Prebendary of Glouceſter 1753. Dean of Briſtol 1757. Biſhop of Glouceſter 1759. Died at Glouceſter 1779. "He was," ſays Dr. Johnſon, "a man of vigorous faculties, a mind fervid and vehement, ſupplied by inceſſant and unlimited enquiry, with wonderful extent and variety of knowledge, which yet had not oppreſſed his imagination. To every work he brought a memory full fraught, together with a fancy fertile of original combinations, and at once exerted the powers of the ſcholar, the reaſoner, and the wit." The beſt old edition of the Divine Legation is as follows: Vol. 1 and 2, containing books 1, 2, and 3, fifth edition, corrected and enlarged, 1766. Vol. 3, 4, 5, containing books 4, 5, 6, fourth edition, corrected and enlarged, 1765. Vol. 6. A ſupplemental volume, containing book 9, Three ſermons, Directions for the ſtudy of theology, and Remarks on Neal, 1768. The ſeventh and eighth books have never been publiſhed. A tenth edition, in 3 vol. 8°. was publiſhed in 1846, edited by James Nichols. An able view of the Warburtonian controverſy will be found in Quart. Rev. 2. 401.

WARBURTONIAN LECTURE.

Founded by Bp. Warburton, by will, dated 1768, to prove the truth of revealed religion in general, and of the Chriſtian in particular, from the completion of the prophecies in the Old and New Teſtament, which relate to the Chriſtian Church, eſpecially to the apoſtaſy of Papal Rome. The Lecture to be preached every year, on the firſt Sunday after Michaelmas Term, the Sunday before and the Sunday after Hilary Term, in the chapel of Lincoln's Inn, each lecturer not to continue longer than four years. For further contents ſee under each author.

WILLIAMS, Daniel.

"A Presbyter of the Church of England."

The succession of Protestant bishops asserted; or, the regularity of the ordinations of the Church of England justify'd. Wherein the first Protestant bishops are cleared from the aspersions lately cast upon them by Mr. Thomas Ward, a Romanist, intituled, The Controversy of Ordination truly stated, &c. i–xvi. Introd. Ff. 2. Pp. 156. 8°. Lond. 1721

WILLIAMS, David.

Born near Cardigan 1738. Became a Dissenting Minister successively at Frome, Somersetshire, at Exeter, and at Highgate. Left that profession about 1773, and established an academy at Chelsea. Opened a chapel in Margaret Street, Cavendish Square, London, 1776, for public worship, in which nothing was recognised but the being of a God; but met with no success. Founded the Literary Fund 1789. Died 1816.

A liturgy on the universal principles of religion and morality. 8°. Lond. 1776

A sermon at the opening of a chapel in Margaret Street, and the introduction of a liturgy. 8°. Lond. 1776

WILLIAMS, Edward, D.D.

A learned Dissenting divine. Born at Glanclwyd, near Denbigh, 1750. Minister at Ross, Herefordshire, 1776. Removed to Oswestry 1777, and to Birmingham 1792. Appointed to superintend the Independent Academy at Rotheram, Yorkshire, 1795. In which charge he continued until his death in 1813. He published a judicious abridgement of Owen on the Hebrews, and edited the works of Doddridge and Jonathan Edwards.

The Christian preacher; or, discourses on preaching by several eminent divines [Bishop Wilkins, J. Jennings, Professor Frank, Dr. Watts, Dr. Doddridge, J. Claude]. Revised and abridged, with an appendix on the choice of books. To which is added, a second appendix containing a further list of books. Fifth edition. 12°. Lond. 1843

A defence of modern Calvinism, containing an examination of the Bishop of Lincoln's [Tomlin] work, entitled, A Refutation of Calvinism. 8°. Lond. 1812

An essay on the equity of divine government, and the sovereignty of divine grace. 8°. Lond. 1813

This is a second edition. In it the author has omitted the more abstruse parts contained in the notes and illustrations of the first, some of the long quotations, the examination of Whitby on the Five Points, and of Mr. Fletcher's controversial writings, in order to make room for important additions.

Hints humbly ſubmitted to commentators, and more eſpecially to ſuch as have written elaborate diſſertations on the Prophecies of Daniel and the Revelation of St. John. Pp. 54. 8°. Lond. 1821

WITHERS, John.

Truth tryed; or, Mr. Agate's pretended plain truth proved an untruth; in which his falſe ſtories and unfair quotations are detected; his charge of Jeſuitiſm and Donatiſm againſt the Diſſenters is retorted, and their agreement with all foreign Proteſtants in point of ordination is further manifeſted. F. 1. pp. 80. Exon. 1708

Truth tryed, &c., Part 2. In which his falſe ſtories and unfair quotations are further detected; the Diſſenters vindicated from the charge of rebellion and irreligion, and the firſt authors of the late war againſt King Charles proved, from Lord Clarendon's Hiſtory, to be Churchmen. Pp. 88. 8°. Exon. 1709

Truth tryed, &c. In which moderate Diſſenters are vindicated from the imputation of ſchiſm, as charged upon them in his late pamphlets, and the validity of Preſbyterian ordination is proved, both from Scripture and antiquity. Ff. 3. pp. 136. 8°. Exon. 1710

An anſwer to Mr. Agate's expoſtulatory letter. To which is added, Mr. Troſs's vindication of himſelf from ſeveral aſperſions caſt upon him in the pamphlet falſly called Plain Truth. Pp. 24. 8°. Exon. 1709

WITSIUS, Herman.

A very learned and eminent Calviniſtic divine. Born at Enkhuyſen, in Holland, 1636. Became Profeſſor of Divinity ſucceſſively at Franeker, at Utrecht, and at Leyden, where he died 1708. Hervey ſpeaks in high terms of approbation of his Œconomy of the Covenants. "All his works," ſays that divine, "have ſuch a delicacy of compoſition, and ſuch a ſweet ſavour of holineſs, that I know not any compariſon more proper to repreſent their true character than the golden pot which had manna, and was outwardly bright with burniſhed gold, inwardly rich with heavenly food."
